Penhurst Academy Tuition and Study Centre

In South Africa every child is legally required to receive some form of official education.

The educational services rendered by us are legitimate and lawful, providing support for home schoolers and other secondary students seeking international qualifications.

This is required from the first school day of the year when a learner turns seven until the last school day of the year when the learner reaches the age of fifteen or completes ninth grade, whichever occurs first.

A student who falls within the aforementioned period of compulsory official education may still attend a Study Centre, provided that such a student is registered with the GDE to receive education at home.

Contact us to arrange an interview to discuss the options available for you.
